Zach uses his diverse and unique experiences, both with law firms and in-house legal departments to provide support across corporate, commercial and intellectual property practices, focusing on the sports, entertainment, technology, food and beverage, apparel, and other consumer goods industries.

Zach advises recording artists, athletes, influencers and other talent in sports and entertainment. He has experience negotiating and preparing a wide range of contracts, including live performance agreements, endorsement agreements and synchronization licenses, among others.

Zach has further experience advising various businesses, with a focus on startups and early stage businesses, in technology, food and beverage, apparel, and other consumer goods. He has negotiated and drafted a wide variety of contracts, including capital raise documentation, manufacturing agreements, supply agreements, research and development agreements, and employment and services agreements.

Having worked for real estate and sports and entertainment law firms and the legal departments for both the Brooklyn Nets and CBS Corporation, Zach has a broad set of capabilities and industry insights that enable him to effectively serve both corporations and individual clients.
