

Communications, Telecom & Media

The Communications, Telecom & Media group at Foster Garvey explores communications law through new and familiar terrain. Our team proudly represents broadcast, cable, Internet and telecommunications companies, and works with those clients to explore new areas of communications law, including digital media, podcasting, channel-sharing and broadband ventures.

Innovative clients of the Communications, Telecom & Media group include commercial and noncommercial broadcasters, trade associations, cable companies, American Indian Tribes, technology companies, broadband and e-commerce providers, all of whom are shaping the future of communications. The group brings an in-depth understanding of the communications and media industries and an expertise acquired from representing a diverse client base with a wide range of commercial and noncommercial interests.
