Dan focuses on representing debtors, creditors, trustees and other constituencies in bankruptcy proceedings, receiverships, out-of-court restructurings, review and analysis of debt documents, loan workouts, litigation and mediation arising from bankruptcy filings, settlement and forbearance negotiations, and other distressed scenarios. Dan's diverse practice also includes representing sponsors and managers on all aspects of real estate funds and syndications, banks and borrowers on major financing transactions, and other firm clients on general corporate matters. Dan's clients have appreciated his commercial and creative approach to identifying and resolving complex legal issues and the perspective he brings from his prior experience with an international law firm in New York.
