

Sports & Entertainment Beat

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

By Joshua Bloomgarden on 1.21.22 | Posted in Sports & Entertainment Spotlight

Welcome to a special quarantine edition of the "Spotlight." When I set out to get more "exposure" for the "Spotlight" this year, this was not exactly what I had in mind. But hey – we play the cards that we are dealt. At least I can take solace in the fact that I did as well in the Australian Open Tennis Tournament as did 20-time major champion Novak Djokovic, who was eventually deported from Australia this past week for failing to comply with Australian COVID-19 vaccination requirements for international travelers. Credit to Djokovic, however, for lasting longer on Australian soil than the Dallas Cowboys on their home turf in the playoffs. Kidding aside, I am, like many of us (presumably Djokovic as well) growing weary of the pandemic as we enter its third year. With that in mind, as a sort of temporary escape from the physical world, I bring you this week's metaverse-centric Spotlight.

- In its deal to acquire gaming giant Activision Blizzard, Microsoft placed a $68.7 billion bet that gamers are more likely to move into the metaverse than out of their parents' basements.
- Keeping up with the times, the NFL is offering Superbowl digital collectible ticket stubs in the form of NFTs, making it both highly implausible and physically impossible that I will be able to get my hands on tickets to this year's contest.
- Luxury fashion house Hermés goes for the purse of 'MetaBirkins' NFT creator Mason Rothschild, in a contentious lawsuit over the alleged infringement by Rothschild's digital creations with respect to the intellectual property in Hermés' physical Birkin handbags. The outcome of the case is likely to provide important answers regarding the extent to which digital manifestations of physical goods are infringing uses or protected expressions.

Endorsement Deals, Sponsorships & Investments

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

Microsoft, College Football Hall of Fame Strike Multi-Year Deal

January 18, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

The Chick-fil-A College Football Hall of Fame has struck a three-year deal with Microsoft, making the tech giant one of the museum's top-tier partners and exclusive tech provider for connecting with fans and giving visitors interactive exhibit experiences.

Why CSU basketball's David Roddy is Most Marketable College Athlete in Colorado to Begin NIL Era Rams Forward Joins Weekly Radio Show as Part of Sponsorship Deal With Local Pizza Chain

January 16, 2022 via Denver Post

Tune into local sports talk radio the next time you drive up the Front Range and you might hear a familiar voice over the airwaves. David Roddy is best known for uncommon versatility on the basketball court for Colorado State.

Djokovic Entangles Sponsors in Australian Open Vax Uproar

January 14, 2022 via U.S. News & World Report - Top Stories

Defending men's champion Serbia's Novak Djokovic practices on Rod Laver Arena ahead of the Australian Open tennis championship in Melbourne, Australia, Wednesday, Jan. 12, 2022.

Tiger Woods First SPAC Swings for $150 Million Sports Tech Deal

January 14, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

Tiger Woods is making a play for a sports technology business, filing to raise $150 million through a special purpose acquisition company, a blank check venture that seeks to bring another company public.

A Shocking Canadian Collab Between Justin Bieber and Tim Hortons Is a Teaching Moment for Brands Needing a Makeover

January 14, 2022 via Inc

Tim Hortons, Canada's largest restaurant chain, most known for its coffee and doughnuts, recently partnered with one of the world's biggest pop stars. As a marketing strategy to expand its reach throughout the U.S., the coffeehouse giant joined forces with Canadian singer, and apparently life-long customer, Justin Bieber.

Shaun White Launches Active Lifestyle Brand 'Whitespace,' Including Signature Pro Model Snowboard

January 13, 2022 via Forbes – Business (subscription may be required)

Across his four previous Olympic Games — Torino 2006, Vancouver 2010, Sochi 2014, Pyeongchang 2018 — there was one essential constant in Shaun White's snowboarding career: his board sponsor.

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

Lawmakers Move to Repeal State's 2021 NIL Law

January 13, 2022 via Alabama Daily News

The lawmaker who last year pushed a state law to allow college athletes to be compensated whenever their name, image or likeness is used in promotional material is now trying to undo it.

Florida NIL Rules Draw Lawsuit From High School, College Players

January 13, 2022 via Sportico – Law (subscription may be required)

With college athletes now enjoying opportunities to profit from their name, image and likeness, it was only a matter of time before high school athletes sought the same chance.

Sports

Djokovic Deported on Eve of Australian Open, Flies to Dubai

January 16, 2022 via Sportico – Law (subscription may be required)

The No. 1 men's tennis player and defending Australian Open champion won't be appearing in this year's Open, which will begin on Monday, January 24. Novak Djokovic, whose visa to enter Australia was twice canceled over an 11-day stretch, lost his appeal to the Federal Court on Sunday.

Cowboys' Return to Playoff Picture Enriches Already Loaded NFL Season

January 14, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

On the heels of the most-watched NFL season in six years, the smart money says the ratings momentum will continue throughout a playoffs slate crammed with the league's biggest TV draws.

Sinclair's NBA Rights Deal May Forestall $600 Million Loan Call

January 13, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

A month after locking in streaming rights for NHL games, Sinclair has closed a similar deal with the NBA that will further bolster its nascent direct-to-consumer service, while also securing $600 million in debt financing.

Music Biz

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

Country Music Community Raises Over $80,000 for Legendary Songwriter Facing Homelessness

January 18, 2022 via News Break - Top Stories

You may not recognize the name Hugh Prestwood. But you've definitely heard his songs. A member of the Nashville Songwriters' Hall of Fame, Prestwood's first hit came in 1978 with "Hard Time For Lovers" by Judy Collins.

Prince's Estate Valued at $156 Million as Legal Battle Nears End

January 15, 2022 via Greenwich Time

The six-year battle over Prince's estate may finally be reaching its end following an agreement between parties that the late singer's estate is worth $156 million.

London Music Royalty Fund Acquires Rights to Catalogue of 70s "Rock Icon"

January 14, 2022 via Bdaily - Creative

Round Hill Music Royalty Fund Limited has announced the acquisition of the music publishing, master rights, and master rights royalties for, the catalogue of Whitesnake frontman and Deep Purple lead singer from 1973 to 1976, David Coverdale.

Multiplatinum Music Producer Partners With Billionaire Dan Gilbert to Launch Music Artist Services Company

January 12, 2022 via Forbes – Leadership (subscription may be required)

Che Pope, a multiplatinum producer and music executive, has partnered with billionaire entrepreneur and investor Dan Gilbert to launch a Detroit-based music services business dubbed WRKSHP, pronounced like "workshop."

Film & TV

Sinclair Streaming Service Fee May Be Triple That of ESPN+

January 18, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

After locking in the local streaming rights for live NHL and NBA games, Sinclair's Diamond Sports Group now appears to have the requisite must-see sports content to populate its upcoming direct-to-consumer service.

Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard in Mega-Deal Worth $68.7 Billion

January 18, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

Microsoft announced a deal to buy video-game player Activision Blizzard for $68.7 billion in cash. If it goes through, it would be Microsoft's biggest-ever acquisition — and by far the biggest deal ever in the video game biz.

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

Netflix Orders Tennis Docuseries From 'Formula 1: Drive to Survive' Producer

January 14, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

Netflix is segueing from professional golf to professional tennis in a new docuseries that follows men's and women's pro tennis players throughout four Grand Slam tournaments, Deadline reports.

Why All of the NFL's Television Partners Saw an Increase in Viewership for the League's Games in 2021

January 14, 2022 via Sports Business Journal - All Sections (subscription may be required)

Why all of the NFL's television partners saw an increase in viewership for the league's games in 2021 with the NFL playoffs underway, top executives from the NFL and its television rights holders are celebrating the regular season's rebound in viewership.

WWE Sued for Interfering With Rival's Wrestler and TV Contracts

January 12, 2022 via Above the Law - News

Major League Wrestling (MLW) has sued World Wrestling Entertainment, Inc. (WWE) for interfering with its access to media markets and wrestling talent. The complaint was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California on January 11.

Non-Fungible Tokens (NFTs)

Musicians Are Shaking up the Industry With Sales of NFT Royalties

January 18, 2022 via Innovation and Tech Today

Musicians are finding ways to uncover hidden value in the NFT space. This is a huge win for both the artists and fanbase, with recent examples set by A Tribe called Quest's and their sale of 5% of royalties from their complete album catalog to fans.

Why Community Is the Secret to NFT Success

January 17, 2022 via Rolling Stone Magazine

Art Basel Miami Beach took place the first week in December 2021, along with it were many parallel art conferences. One of the biggest points of focus was the discussion of NFTs.

Hermes Sues Metabirkins NFT Project Over Trademarks. May Not Be Slam Dunk

January 17, 2022 via Ledger Insights

Hermes, the luxury company with a market capitalization of €142 billion ($162 billion), has sued NFT creator Mason Rothschild, who designed the MetaBirkins NFTs.

Sports & Entertainment Spotlight: Microsoft to Buy Activision
Blizzard for $68.7 Billion Making it Among the Biggest Deals Ever in the Video Game Industry

Super Bowl Ticket NFTs Offered as NFL Tests Digital Collectibles

January 17, 2022 via Sportico – Business (subscription may be required)

Following a regular season debut, the NFL recently announced plans to expand its NFT ambitions during the playoffs, including the Super Bowl.

3LAU-Backed Platform Royal Crashes During First Music NFT Drop, Mint Delayed

January 13, 2022 via The Block

Royal, an NFT platform from the American music producer 3LAU (pronounced “Blau”), crashed after its first mint drop. The mint was supposed to start on January 11 at 1:00 p.m ET and include music NFTs from the Grammy award-winning rap star Nas.