"Imagining a Role for Artificially Intelligent Juries," Sacramento County Bar Association

07.01.17 Sacramento Lawyer Magazine

Could artificial intelligence ("AI") be applied to the fact-finding responsibilities traditionally given to juries? The possibility invites reflection on what would be lost, and what could be gained, if our justice system moved away from using juries comprised of human beings and instead used computerized "juries" applying artificial intelligence. This essay, written by Kelly Mennemeier, shares some reflections.
