

Events

“Worker Classification: Looking Through the Lens of Federal, State and Local Law,” Willamette Law Review Tax Symposium

February 2, 2018 Salem, OR

Larry Brant will discuss worker classification under the federal, state and local laws, and will point out some of the potential conflicts among the laws. In addition, he will explore risks associated with worker misclassification and offer guidance to practitioners in this area of law.

About the Symposium:

2018 Willamette Law Review Symposium: US v. Oregon: Examining the Role of Federalism Under the Trump Administration

A one-day symposium featuring panel discussions about federalism.

Changing federal and state laws and a new presidential administration have brought federalism issues into the spotlight, highlighting inherent frictions and questions regarding the proper roles of the federal government and the states. The Willamette Law Review Symposium explores federalism through the lens of prominent legal issues at the forefront of the public policy debate in Oregon. For more information and to register, visit the Willamette University College of Law website.

Featured People

Larry J. Brant

Principal|Portland

503.553.3114 larry.brant@foster.com

Related Areas

- Federal Tax
- State & Local Tax
- Tax